Good Autism Practice

Do you work or live with children and adults with an autistic spectrum disorder? If so, Good Autism Practice is for you. This is the first journal dedicated solely to promoting good practice with children and adults with autism and Asperger's syndrome.

Each journal includes articles:

- encouraging good and innovative practice
- written by practitioners, academics, parents and people with autism

The journal is edited by highly respected academics and practitioners specialising in autistic spectrum disorders and will be of interest to parents and practitioners in health, education and social services, as well as people who have autistic spectrum disorders.

Recent topics include:

- Classifying the autistic spectrum: can it be done?
- What are the criteria for success in a support group for parents of children on the autism spectrum?
- Can adults on the autism spectrum be affected positively by the use of intensive interaction in supported living services?
- Mutual attraction? How do we identify and attract the right people to work in the field of autism?
- Narrative therapy: a whole-school approach within a specialist residential school for young people on the autism spectrum

Volume 13, 2012

Edited by Glenys Jones and Elizabeth Attfield and published by BILD in partnership with autism.west midlands, University of Birmingham and Autism Cymru.
