Good Autism Practice

Do you work or live with children and adults with an autistic spectrum condition? If so, Good Autism Practice is for you. The journal is edited by highly respected academics and practitioners specialising in autistic spectrum conditions and will be of interest to parents and practitioners in health, education and social services, as well as people who have autistic spectrum disorders. www.bild.org.uk/gap

The SLD Experience

The SLD Experience is aimed at parents and practitioners working with and caring for children and young people with severe learning difficulties in mainstream and special schools. It is the only UK journal dedicated solely to promoting good practice with school pupils with severe learning difficulties and is published three times a year, in the spring, summer and autumn terms. www.bild.org.uk/sld

International Journal of Positive Behavioural Support

The International Journal of Positive Behavioural Support Journal is a peer-reviewed publication that aims to define and promote good practice in relation to the use of (PBS), add to the evidence base about PBS interventions and demonstrate how PBS can support people to change their challenging behaviours, improve their quality of life, and result in reductions in the use of physical intervention, seclusion and as required medication. www.bild.org.uk/ijpbs
