People with learning difficulties watch a lot of TV. They also have interesting life experiences which would make great stories in the local newspapers. This event will look at how the media works, and how we can all get more pleasure from TV, newspapers and other media.

The workshops will give you the chance to try out

- Pleasures and problems of the media
- 3DTV – bringing the telly alive in your home
- Media clubs – what they are and how to set one up
- Getting your story into the local newspaper

Who should come:

- People with learning disabilities
- Support workers
- Relatives and friends
- Service managers

Trainers Profile

Lloyd Page and Marion Janner are from Learning Difficulties Media. Lloyd is a TV researcher and journalist and the first person with a learning disability to be a member of the National Union of Journalists. Marion is particularly interested in making TV viewing more enjoyable – and her own favourite programme is Will and Grace.
